

On June 13, 2007 the Wall Street Journal incorrectly referred to Heritage Bankshares Inc., of Norfolk, Virginia in their “Heard on the Street” column.

A correction is printed below as published in the June 14, 2007 issue of the Wall Street Journal.

Two of the creditors of Meyer-Sutton Homes Inc. are Southern Community Bank, a subsidiary of Southern Community Bancshares, based in Fayetteville, Ga., and Heritage Bank a unit of CCF Holding Inc., based in Jonesboro, Ga. Yesterday’s Heard on the Street column incorrectly gave the names of the banks as Southern Community Financial Corp. of Winston-Salem, N. C., and Heritage Bankshares Inc., of Norfolk, Va. Also, an accompanying table measuring the exposure of certain banks to construction loans in Georgia mismatched the data and the names of the banks. A corrected table appears on page C3.